

The First Principle of Revolution: A Panel Discussion and Citizen Dialogue

Presented by the Patriot Week Foundation and Oakland University Center for Civic Engagement

The Patriot Week Foundation and Oakland University Center for Civic Engagement kick off a weeklong series at various locations throughout the state each discussing one of seven principles. The first event hosted at the OCBA focuses on revolution — the right to abolish or reform an oppressive government. Panelists include Chief Justice Stephen Markman (ret.), Chief Judge Jeffery Matis, professor Marc Kruman, with special guest State Bar of Michigan President Elect Daniel Quick, and introductory comments by Honorable Michael Warren. Attendees will be encouraged to share their thoughts in a structured citizen dialogue moderated by Professor David Dulio. Reports from this and other panel discussions and citizen dialogues will be used by high school and college students to develop policy proposals at an education summit in May 2024.
